WORK SESSION

SESD PRESENTATION

Mark Holdaway and Dan Elsworth of SESD stated a year ago SESD implemented a substantial rate increase and there was a lot of misinformation about the increase. Mark Holdaway went through a spread sheet and explained what happened to force the increase. There are many different sources used to generate power. About 5 years ago a California Company spread to the neighboring states and started using those resources to create energy for California and that started pushing up the prices. In 2023 power prices went crazy. A Nebo gas plant near Payson had to shut down for significant repairs, which left SESD exposed to the open market. Gas and other prices also shot up at that time. At that time SESD was paying 18 cents per kilowatt of power, which typically was 7-8 cents per kilowatt. SESD had to use its reserves and it nearly killed SESD. Material costs had gone up, transformer cost doubled. In the last 5 years power poles went from $5000 a pole to $17,000 a pole. There were supply chain issues due to the pandemic that affected the cost of everything. Because of everything the board decided it had to implement 40% increase. This last winter was a good water year and which helped stabilize the cost. SESD forecasts prices to remain stable through the year. SESD purchased a flat block (?) to help maintain prices. The open market is expected to go up due to the hot summer that is expected. California is also expected to remain in the SESD's open market. The renewal power that goes through a converter is damaging transformers and regulators nationwide. The small modular nuclear project to be built in Idaho is dead at the moment. SESD has been working very hard to purchase power from other sources to keep things stabilized. Coal was being decommissioned all over the place until the co-ops stood up and said no we will not shut down. Rocky Mountain Power was scheduled to close a lot of their power plants but because of the legislation that was past implementing a rigorous process to ensure grid reliability, coal mines cannot shut down, so they left the plants open. SESD has made power purchase contacts that will keep things hopefully stabilized Anyone getting solar needs to get a battery. Solar rates compared to Rocky Mountain Power is identical. The kilowatt allowed went up from 10kw to 25 kw. SESD power rate was a little higher than Rocky Mountain before the increase, now SESD is higher than everyone. Rocky Mountain is getting ready to raise its rates which will be equal to SESD's. Everyone else is catching up and will be as high as SESD. Council would like to put tips in newsletter of ways to be more efficient and save money.

Councilmember Willis played a short video about separation of duties. Councilmember Peterson stated there are 3 items on here that need a written policy. Curtis Roberts is currently doing internal audits; is he interal? He thinks some of this is already in place and recommends putting these items on the next agenda.

2. GENERAL PLAN

Councilmember Peterson recommends having a work session on the general plan. Maureen Bushman and the Planning Commission worked on this for more than a year and does not want to rush it. Councilmember Willis is concerned about the moderate-
